Consider the following quotation from J.S. Mill:

“ The moral rules which forbid mankind from hurting one another are more vital to human happiness than any other rules or principles of behavior. Their observance alone preserves peace among human beings; if obedience to them were not the rule, every one would see in everyone else a probable enemy.”

- (a) Explain the view of human happiness expressed in the above paragraph.

- (b) Do you agree with this view of happiness ? Whether for or against, justify your position.
